Criticism

Note: Pick twenty works from the following list, in conjunction with your advisor, that reflect the breadth of American literary studies on the period from 1830 to 1914. To individualize your selection, you may modify up to 20% – approximately four or five works. The department strongly recommends that your reading of both primary and critical works be accompanied by concurrent reading of the appropriate sections of either the Cambridge History of American Literature or the Columbia Literary History of the United States.
